PREAMBLE

The European Trade Union Confederation, founded on 8 February 1973 by seventeen national organisations affiliated to the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU), has since expanded to include other organisations affiliated to the ICFTU, the World Confederation of Labour (WCL), or having no international affiliation.

The European Trade Union Confederation, consisting as it does of free, independent and democratic trade union confederations and European industry federations, aspires to be a unified and pluralistic organisation representing all working people at European level.

In particular, the European Trade Union Confederation will work throughout Europe for:

- the extension and consolidation of political liberties and democracy;
- the respect of human and trade union rights;
- the elimination of all forms of discrimination, based on sex, age, colour, race, sexual orientation, nationality, religious or philosophical beliefs or political opinions;
- the promotion of equal opportunities and equal treatment between men and women;
- sustainable development;
- freely chosen and productive employment for all;
- the development, improvement and enhancement of education and training;
- the democratisation of the economy;
- a steady improvement in living and working conditions;
- a society free of exclusion and based on the principles of freedom, justice and solidarity.

The European Trade Union Confederation has, more specifically, the task of carrying out, in all events and circumstances, autonomously and with the highest degree of cohesion, the trade union initiatives at European level necessary to attain these goals as part of the process of the European integration.

The European Trade Union Confederation directs its activities towards:

- the European Union, and calls for the deepening of its social, political and democratic contents, in step with that of its economic and monetary dimensions, for its enlargement to other European countries, and for its active commitment to promoting peace, development and social justice in the world;
- the Council of Europe, EFTA and other European institutions which promote cooperation on matters affecting working people's interests;
- the European employers' organisations, with a view to establishing an industrial relations system at European level via the Social Dialogue and negotiations.

The European Trade Union Confederation acts in accordance with the provisions of its Constitution.
